

Film Flashes

Kitty Gordon will display her versatility, rare gowns and magnificent (to quote the papers) back in her fourth picture about August 1 for the World Film corporation. All but the back is "Brady-made".

A lot of money went up in smoke when a photoplay "striker" set fire to a big oil tank near Franklin, Pa., to appease the appetite for realism exhibited by Edgar Lewis in his direction of "Those Who Tell", the five-act feature by Daniel Carson Goodman, with Nance O'Neil as star, which has just been released by the Lubin company.

Misa Lucille Taft plays the part of a stenographer with whom her employer is in love in "The Criminal's Thumb", a Mutual picture. It differs from situations of this kind in most dramas, since his love is honorable. However, the girl is in love with another, and for that reason gives up her position. What follows depends in strange fashion upon her having taken this action.

Pearl White, the "perfect fearless" (take it from the press agent) girl of the Pathé "Iron Claw" serial, laughed so hard in telling of this one that we don't know whether we have it straight or not. However, last week Pearl had occasion to hire a woman to come in and do work by the day. She was an English woman, and her references and appearance were all in her favor. Everything was settled but the consideration of wages. "What is your price?" asked Pearl. "If I eat myself, two dollars and a quarter," said the woman. "If you eat me, one seventy-five."

Carl Rich, the 5-year-old son of Charles J. Gienrich, a well-known New York newspaper man, has joined the ranks of motion picture stars and has already made his initial appearance in "The Redemption of Daze Darcy", a Vitaphone Blue Ribbon feature announced for release early in June. Little Carl enjoys the distinction of appearing as the character impersonated by Jimmie Morrison when a child. What made special appeal to players and director was Carl's almost uncanny resemblance to Mr. Morrison, both as his natural self and when made up for the character.

Helen Arnold, a little Louisville, Ky., girl, heretofore unknown, has been selected by William A. Brady as the most beautiful photographic type in the world, and will in all probability win the Beauty and Brains contest which the World Film corporation has been conducting for the past year in the Photoplay Magazine. If Miss Arnold is successful among the twelve thousand contestants, whose photographs were submitted, she will jump from obscurity to national favor over-night—as she will be given permanent employment in World pictures under Mr. Brady's personal direction.

Albee Brady and twenty-seven World Film players spent the past week in New Bedford, Mass., where numerous of the scenes for "Miss Petticoats" were staged aboard the whaler "Charles W. Morgan", the sole remaining typical American whaler. It is 75 years old. Captain Cleveland, who has equipped the whaler and leaves shortly for a two months' trip, entered into the spirit of the picture, and with his crew acted in accordance with the director's instructions. He refused to accept the director's invitation to witness the first showing of the film, which will be held in New Bedford opera house on September 1.

WILLIAM S. HART A SCULPTOR'S MODEL

Noted Western Character Man in Movies Has Been Modeled in Bronze.

It was to be expected.

The massive and powerful features of William S. Hart possess an inspiration for a sculptor, and there could not fail to be among the many artists of every kind who are to be found on the Pacific coast one who would feel the inherent appeal of that remarkable face and seek the privilege of reproducing its strength and virility in enduring marble.

The artist to whom this inspiration came is Christodoro, an Italian sculptor, whose works are to be seen in many famous galleries on the other side of the ocean, and who has also exhibited in New York with much resultant favorable comment. While visiting on the coast Christodoro was invited by a friend to pay a visit to the Inceville studios. It so chanced that the day he was there Hart was making some scenes for a forthcoming feature.

At once the attention of the Italian was riveted on the expressive countenance of the "Triangle" star. "The face," he whispered to his friend, when they had not been watching the making of the scene more than three minutes. "It is wonderful! The lines—look! The expressions! Who is the man? His face itself is drama! After the scenes had been made, an introduction was brought about. The sculptor was profuse in his tributes to the acting ability of Hart, and spoke to the star himself particularly of his remarkable face and his unique gift of facial expression. He concluded with a request that Hart sit for him for a heroic bust of his head and shoulders, and also pose for a full-length figure in his western make-up. After some consideration as to whether he could spare the time from his labors before the camera, Hart assented, and for several weeks took his place on the model's stand at the sculptor's studio.

BATTLE OF HEARTS
WILLIAM FOX PRODUCTION

A TENSE MOMENT IN GREAT PLAY.

The result is two noteworthy pieces of sculpture. Both are splendid likenesses of Hart, and remarkable for the intense action which seems to fairly pervade and leap out from the marble of the bust and the bronze of the full figure.

"KICK" IS GOOD ENGLISH WORD. It is Not Slang in the Sense of Vehement Protest.

In a recent decision rendered by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States supreme court, he employed the word "kicked" in what many persons believe to be its slangy sense. It is well known that Justice Holmes is the son of the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," whose word once in Boston and in America was law in literature and in medicine. Various newspapers have called attention to the fact that Justice Holmes had behind this use of the word "kicked" a long list of excellent authorities. Doubtless, the ultra purist will continue to "kick" at the "kicked" of Justice Holmes, when he said: "The justice meant that the defendant violently objected to the decision and protested decidedly against the action involved." The fact is that Justice Holmes used the word in a sense in which it has been employed ever since the fourteenth century. Later, in 1556, we have on high authority the statement: "The wicked doe ever kicke against the preachers." In a Bible published in 1611, the year in which the King James version was issued, we have the words: "Wherefore kicke ye at my sacrifice?" Professor Lombury often pointed out that so-called slangy American speech turns out to be practically Chaucerian, and sometimes even goes beyond Chaucer. But we need not go so far back for a striking example of the use of the word kick. Tennyson gives us this notable illustration of its use: Ye hold the woman is the better man, A rampant horse, such as, if it spread, Would make all women kick against their lords.

STRAND.

Today will be the last day of Charlie Chaplin in "The Fireman". This is the best two-reel, ninth producer that Chaplin has produced. There is more action and genuine comedy crowded into this picture than any of those shown before.

For next week the Strand has some mighty fine programs in store for Tulsa theatergoers and it will be to their interest to watch and follow the announcements later.

So He Didn't Waste It.

A little boy went to Sunday school for the first time. His mother gave him a nickel to put in the collection box. When he returned he had a sack of candy.

"Where did you get the candy?" asked his mother.

"From the stand around the corner."

"But what did you buy it with?" "With the nickel you gave me."

"But that was for Sunday school!" "Well," replied the boy, "I didn't need it. The minister met me at the door and got me in free."—Christian Herald.
